IN MY PRIG... RIGHT NOW, is a large, 32 ounce jar of MIRACLE WHIP, the salad dressing that combines tangy, home-made flavor with satin-smooth texture. I use it, in some way, 'most every day-for the salads we all enjoy, and in sandwiches for the young man of the house. Nobody has ever been able to copy Miracle Whip—and so, salads made with it are unique for flavor, for smoothness—for downright goodness. Try blending Miracle Whip with diced apples and celery, add nuts and raisins, serve on crisp lettuce—and you'll bless the thought! Miracle Whip is a delight to use, and to taste. Do try it, this very week!

IT'S FUN TO HAVE AN ADMIRING FAMILY waiting in eager anticipation to sample your latest cooking triumph... and you and I know that it's the goodness of BLUE BONNET MARGARINE that has a great deal to do with our success in baking those scrumptious pies, cakes, cookies and muffins. These cold winter days there's nothing more delectable than the whiff of fresh baking to welcome the family home. So let's stock up on Blue Bonnet, the all-vegetable margarine—with essential vitamins and minerals added... And don't forget to use it generously on fresh vegetables and as a spread... Yes, everything tastes better with Blue Bonnet on it!

RCMP, who made the arrests, said they are searching for six other men following the raid, the latest incident in the strike of Newfoundland loggers.

The raided camp is about 80 miles northeast of Corner Brook. RCMP Inspector Arthur Argent said today that men at the camp counted 35 cars in the raiding party.

200 IN CAMP RAID

The number of raiders was estimated at 200 "and it would seem that the whole thing was well organized," Inspector Argent said.

The Grand Falls local of the International Woodworkers of America (CLC), numbering 1,200 members, has been on strike against the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company since Dec. 31.

Inspector Argent said the raiders ordered about 85 men at the Bowater's camp to leave. Some of the camp employees made their way to Deer Lake, about 50 miles away, and notified RCMP.

The Die Is Cast

SCIENTIFIC ADVANCE, PAR- plicated electronic ground system to ticularly in armaments, become so rapid that Canada has skipped the interim phase of manned supersonic fighter planes. This country is about to jump from the sonic jet-plane era directly into the missile age.

Such a sweeping decision, affecting so many sectors of national policy, could not be a simple one. Prime Minister Diefenbaker has made it, after much "soul-searching," and he is frank in admitting the possibility of error. We can only hope, he says, that we have made the right decision.

That is a sentiment that will be echoed by the nation, but there is little on which the layman can base an opinion. When even the military experts are not in agreement, it is not likely that the public can form an accurate judgment. And Mr. Diefenbaker's almost apologetic announcement is witness to the Government's own mixed feelings.

For this reason, Mr. Lester Pearson's proposal that Parliament undertake a "complete and comprehensive" study of Canada's whole defensive policy should meet with wide approval.

There are many factors involved in addition to military considera-tions. There is, for instance, the matter of cost, of maintenance of a working force of experienced technicians, of avoiding undue dependence on United States assistance. On these questions the public is still generally confused. A full enquiry, within the limits of military security, could do much to restore confidence after many months of doubt, contradiction and delay.

The magnitude of the decision cannot be overestimated. Canada, in effect, will continue with air defence but little improved over that of World War II, until guided' missiles and the enormously com-

THIS COMMUNITY, THROUGH its elected representatives, has expressed appreciation for the concession made by Mr. N. R. Crump, C.P.R. president, in providing "austerity" ship service between Victoria and Vancouver after next Wednesday.

This is a gesture which reflects the transportation leader's unwillingness to inflict an injury on the people of British Columbia's capital and a sympathetic regard for their interests.

It is to be hoped the people of Greater Victoria will reciprocate in any manner they can. The Princess Marguerite's daily trip to and from Vancouver will be an uneconomical operation for the company. Such will be the case until the volume of summer traffic justifies extended service.

But the stop-gap agreement has not solved the long-term problem facing Victoria. The C.P.R. has made no announcement of any plans for next fall. Under the circumstances the city

Mr. Macmillan Goes to Moscow

WHAT ULTIMATE ACHIEVEment may be recorded as the result of Prime Minister Macmillan's visit to Russia remains to be seen.

One positive virtue in the visit has already been pointed out. Macmillan believes that this gesture may help to break down the barwhich separate the two peoples.

Lord Dundee, speaking recently in the House of Lords, has defined the purpose he sees in the trip.

'What we want to do is not just to have controlled visits, some of which are probably for the purpose of propaganda sponsored by one government or another; we want to have real freedom of intercourse between the leaders of education. industry, and science, and between ordinary travelers and tourists: we want censorship to be abolished; we want the Russian people and our areadlesses discount other's literature, to visit each other and talk to each other."

The British Prime Minister, and sions with Russian leaders.

his journey. They see in it an effort to improve understanding between the two peoples, to relieve some misapprehensions that can be relieved because, as Lord Dundee sees it, "the Russian people are as amiable and as capable of love as any other people in the world."

The presence of Mr. Macmillan in Moscow should work to that end

He will see and be seen. And those meeting the British Prime Minister the flesh will find he wears neither tail nor horns.

In his appearances and talks he may be able to point up the similarities of Russian and British mem bers of the human family and do much to eliminate the caricatures "war-mongering capitalists" which the propagandists have sought to create.

clear understanding of relations between Russia and Red China by watching news developments; almost impossible by reading what the two communist allies say about each other. The exact state of the Moscow-Peiping axis at any given moment is mainly a thing of conjecture among Western observers, and the conjecture may be strongly tinged with wishful thinking.

A few recent incidents, however, may be straws in the wind. Mr. Khrushchev has made no bones about his personal reaction to the Chinese organization of communes -in which almost the whole Chi-

IT IS DIFFICULT TO GET A nese population lives under semimilitary regimentation. The system long ago proved unworkable in Russia, and the Soviet leader sees it as a retrograde step on the march to "socialism"

The Kremlin is therefore evidently in disagreement with Peiping on this point. Perhaps Mr. Khrushchev is still rankling under the memory of his hurried visit to the Chinese capital and his subsequent right-aboutface on the proposal for a summit conference that would not include Red China. He must have received some abrupt advice from his Chinese allies to cause such a sudden reversal in policy.

As Our Readers See It

Mainland Connections

We, the members of the Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association, Victoria Branch, would like to protest the withdrawal from Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle of the regular CPR boats.

At the signing of the Terms of Union, the Dominion Government made it sure that Vancouver Island and its main city, Victoria, would have rail service with the mainland (and that term is still law), and also that we would have adequate ship service with U.S.A. ports on the West Coast.

None of this has been fulfilled by the Federal Government and will not unless the people of Vancouver Island demand that the Terms of Union be fulfilled.

wake up Nanaimo, the Albernis, and Victoria Esquimalt was the chosen terminus of the railway. It's on the statute books at Ottawa and Victoria, also Westminster, England. Seymour Narrows was to be crossed, and Sey-mour Narrows is only 2,350 feet wide from solid rock on both sides. There are lots of bridges with longer spans than that.

General Moody, who surveyed the railway right of way, said it was not impossible, and that was 90 years ago. It is not so far from Williams Lake on the PGE Railway to the coast at Seymour Narrows.

The bridge should be built for both rail and automobile traffic. You can just visualize what advantage this service would be to Vancouver Island as a whole and to the Dominion of Canada.

FROM WASHINGTON

Dulles Saw the Cold War in Terms of Good and Evil

WHY do so many Western leaders W regard the illness of John Foster Dulles as a major tragedy today, when they would have danced at his funeral two years ago? It is an interesting question, worth careful examination. In large part, of course, this horror aroused by the incapacity of a man once so heartily dis-trusted is an admis-sion of weakness. It derives from the general feeling that Dulles is the real back-bone, the one remaining element of firmness, in the Eisenhower Administra-tion and in the Western Alliance too. With Dulles gone, what posture will the Administration assume? What course will the West take? It is curious that the unyielding determination of a single aging man should have come to mean so much, but the fact must be faced. There is more than this, however, to the change of attitude towards the Secretary of State among all the men he chiefly worked with. The other element, beyond doubt, is a change in the test these men applied to the man himself.

Perhaps the best way to put it is to say that, in the last two years. John Easter Dulles came to be judged less

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

by his methods and more by his spirit.

About his methods, the less said the better. The "liberation" policy was a fraud. The strategy of "massive retaliation" was announced at the very moment when it was becoming impos sible. The talk about "brinks" was de-plorable. The appeasement of Sen. Mc-Carthy in the early years came close to destroying the American Foreign Service.

An honest portrait cannot omit the wens on the chin. But it must be said that as the years passed, and Foster Dulles gained self-confidence in harness, he vastly improved his way of doing Meanwhile, as the years passed, the spirit of Foster Dulles also gained in value because it became more and more rare. It has been much criticized, this Dulles spirit, on the ground that he was "moralistic." He was constantly accused of "seeing the cold war too much in terms of right and wrong,

In a sense, moreover, this was quite ue. His view of such a man as Anastas Mikoyan was quite simply Shelley's view of Castlereagh—which was, inci-dentally, most unfair to Castlereagh but produced the best denunciatory poem in

He had a mask like Castlereagh.

Seven bloodhounds followed him, All were fat, and well they might Be in admirable plight: For one by one and two by two, He tossed them human hearts to chew." But surely it was better to see Mikoyan in this way, than to see him as the big businessmen saw him, who were charmed by the insinuating Mikoyan manners, or to see him as the people in Chicago saw him, who mobbed his opera box to get the Mikoyan auto-Since Mikoyan is very obviously an immensely complex character, necessarily mingling some good with evil, the Dulles view of him was no doubt too uncomplicated. But it was more accurate and more honest than the view of those who found this blood-stained little Armenian intriguer a delightful dinner By the same token, the Dulles vision of the cold war as a gigantic contest be-tween good and evil, in which one could not give an inch without being guilty of surrender to the powers of darkness, is immeasurably more accurate than the vision of the cold war held by those who denounce Dulles for "intle It is true, of course, that American and Western policy in these last years has increasingly lost the vital power of maneuver. With such defence policies as we have pursued, indeed, a bold, imaginative and rapidly maneuvering foreign policy was and is impossible.

But what is this "flexibility" that Dulles' critics prate about? So far as one can see, it means the willingness to surrender something or other, every time a remorseless enemy points a pistol (or a missile) in our direction

If a "flexible policy" is now to be adopted because Foster Dulles is no longer in charge of the State Department, the time will no doubt come when the desirability of being "flexible" about Communist claims to Staten Island will be widely debated.

At bottom, moreover, the cold war is a gigantic contest between good and evil, between freedom and slavery, be-tween the values of the human spirit and the values of the anthill state. The best thing about Foster Dulles was precisely the fact that he saw the cold war in those terms

The spirit that drove him forth, on that last agonizing, stoical, marvelously courageous journey overseas, came from his sense of the moral issues in the cold war. And at the last this Dulles spirit warmed men who burned with a less intense feeling, and they were

What Could Be Worse Than the Age of Capsule Foods?

OUITE recently the head of the great Swiss chocolate, makers, Nestles, made what I though was a rather strange and startling plea. He appealed, in effect, to firms that process food to place stress on retaining-and emphasizing the natural flavors thesis in food preparation and in the of what we eat. He saw a real danger in the increase of synof flavors that may be quite dissimilar to the natural flavor of a food. At first one might be tempted to dismiss his appeal as exaggerated but a brief excursion through a super-mar will soon dispel that comfortable attitude. There is a danger and, if this mad determination to synthetize our foods is pursued to a logical conclusion we may look toward a bleak age when male and remale robots pause momentarily at stated intervals and restore their flagging energies by gulping down capsule that will embody all that their desiccated metabolisms will require.

I am not a gourmet but am one of a vast number of simple people to whom eating is somewhat more than a fuel-stop in a race to attain some obscure goal that may not even exist.

This thought came sharply into focus the other day when we opened a jar of wild blackberries put down last summer while the sun's warmth still lay in their juicy depths. We poured these over a dish of bulk ice cream and I am sure I could feel my taste buds expand with joy as the inimitable flavor passed over them.

Then I thought of my boyhood when the business of selling papers admitted me to these temples of epicurian delight, the Poodle Dog and the New England restaurants.

The atmosphere of these meccas of good diners was compounded of the aromas of a thousand meals, prepared with love and care and with the end result of appealing first to the palate. Even to my untrained culinary sense it was evident that here was leisure to enjoy good food, and here was good food to enjoy at leisure.

It is my belief that these restaurants ranked with the best in San Francisco and Chicago early in this century.

They were quite different. The Poodle Dog, on the south side of Yates, just east of that tiny alley that leads to a blind end, was in white and gold and red plush. At the cash drawer Mrs. Davis presided, keeping a watchful eye on everything within the portals of her restaurant. Waiters were deft, quiet and in many cases knew the pref-erences of their patrons. The New England, on the west side of Government between Yates and John-Tr is son, flourished under the meticulous was even quieter than the Poodle Dog and its carpets deeper. It had also a heavier atmosphere—a Germanic undertone but it was. like its contemporary. dedicated to the purveyance of superlatively good food.

Of course there were in Victoria other eating places but none to march in the same rank as these two. And there was not, as yet, an Empress

The dining rooms of the three "Ds" -Dominion, Driard and Dallas hotels were all very good indeed and out at Oak Bay the great Oak Bay Hotellater burned to the ground—was inter-nationally known for its excellence in cuisine. Later John Virtue translated much of this excellence into his new Oak Bay Hotel which is now called

The Old Charming Inn. Apart from a genius in the prepara-tion of good food it is hard to know to what one may attribute the success of such places as the old New England and the Poodle Dog.

It was perhaps that their proprie-tors made no compromise with quality; that only the finest of beef-well hung spring lamb from Salt Spring, fresh eggs and butter from Saanich farms, fish new caught from the and bacon sugar cured and snroked over slow green maple fires.

We may never see their like again but we may all enjoy good food in our homes and then pray that we are spared the age of capsule foods: what horror would there then be in nuclear destruc-tion of the race?

FOR A GOOD UNIVERSITY

By TONY EMERY Knowledge, Good Students and Almost Unlimited Cash

THE news in our newspapers these days is not so good that we can afford to overlook any little crumb of comfort to be found in the columns, propped against the breakfast marmalade or the cobwebby bot-tle of Chateau Haut Quadra 1958 at supof my unalloyed de light when I read, among some remarks attributed to Mr. W. N. Chant, what I Emery took to be a promise that Victoria Col-lege was to be not just a university, but "the finest, the best" university Of course the pessimist will be quick to point out that Mr. Chant is not the minister of education, and that he did not specify the exact limits of the area in which Victoria's university was to be so egregious. The best on Vancou-ver Island? In British Columbia? In Canada? In North America? In the

We can pass over the first of these without comment, but I would insist that every one of the other targets is well within the range of any government plan that allowed for sufficient expenditure. To make a good univers ity, starting from scratch, you need only three things; a knowledge of what makes a good university, good students and almost unlimited cash.

I have cheated a little on that first item. Not every one will agree on the essentials of a good university. Perhaps I should start the ball rolling by giving you my notion of what is required, and then you can start the argument from there. To me the basic is that the institution, be residential.

When I was at UBC I used to watch dowish such of automobiles up the Mall at 8.20 every morning, and the whirlwind exodus of the same cars at 3:40 every afternoon.

"This place may be many things to many people, all of them admirable, would say to myself, "but one thing cannot be to those who reside in Burnaby and Ladner and New Westminster and Lynn Valley, and that is a university."

The only students who enjoyed the advantages of university life were the denizens of Acadia and Fort and Westbrook Camps, although I should have been knocked down and trampled underfoot if I had told them so.

If you know anything about uni versities you will agree with me that the educative part of the years you spend in these learneries comes from ntercourse with the brightest individ uals of your own generation. Clever children like to shine: they do not like to be defeated in argument; they will put in more time on their own in libraries amassing ammunition to shoot at their contemporaries than they would ever spend on any professor's behalf.

The bright student in the humanities should be beyond the stage where it is necessary to lead him by the hand through lengthy survey courses only slightly denser than the ones he is sup posed to have had in high school. Lectures (defined I believe by Leacock as a method of getting notes from the professor's lectern into the student's notebook without passing through the minds of eithers are small this locat important part of any true education. When I look back on my own university days I recall the pleasure I derived from the lectures of David Cecil, Isaiah Berlin, G. H. D. Cole and Maurice Bowra, all of whom lectured in other disciplines than the one in which I was enrolled; of lectures in my own field only Keith Feiling gave me anything couldn't get from books.

The university teacher really earns his money honestly if he manages to stimulate thought in his students, and this is better done by personal contact, which brings me to the next essential:

the tutorial system.

That this is the best system of education does not, I think, admit of any argument. I observe that it is the system which the armed forces have been happy to adopt in the training of of-ficers, but then expense is no object where the arts of war are in question; it is only the peaceful arts that have to beg for money. It is a costly method. of teaching, but it is worth every penny it costs. To residences and tutors you must now add a third essential large, well stocked and well-staffed libraries is not enough that they contain books dealing with all the courses you are taking: they must contain every book that you may ever want to read. If an engineering student should sud-nly discover a thirst for knowledge about Zen or Zoroaster, or a would-be biologist evince a passion for the paint-Abbe Prevost, they should need to go no further than the library to satisfy their curiosity.

I look back nostalgically to the days when five minutes in the catalogue room and ten words on a piece of paper would bring me a copy of any book printed in English since 1750, not to mention a choice of perhaps a quarter of a million other tomes.

All this adds up to money. Mr. Chant's dream could be realized without difficulty over a period of perhaps 20 years, but the initial stake would be nearer to twenty million than ten, and the pot would have to be sweetened annually to the tune of about $3,000,000, He is right, though, in aiming high start with. North America teems with so-called universities which are little more than glorified high schools, and there is little point in adding to the number. It would indeed be nice to have "the best... the finest," but I would settle for one as good as Glasgow or Gottingen, Harvard or Heidel-berg. Oslo or Oxford, Paris or Princeton, Or Moscow?

February

AS February begins to drag itself towards A its sordid close, the thought comes stealing over one (as it does in every year) that this wretched month is not really necessary. It could well be eliminated from the calendar. For one thing, it is different. And that alone is a monstrous sin. It has 28 days, and as everyone knows, proper months have 30 (or 31 , that is, all the rest have); and as if that were not enough, it has SILENUS 29 every four years. On the ground that February is curious and eccentric, this column suggests that it be eliminated.

But apart from this natural depravity of the month, can anyone think of anything good that happens in February? To be sure, we have the occasional fine day, which is all very well. But these few little snacks of sunshine are but a snare; they are the bait which lures one into showers of freezing rain without a coat. If March comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb, February comes in like a germ and goes out like a virus.

Let us not get ahead of ourselves. are still struggling through February, still trying to think of some little thing which might give it some excuse for existing.

Well, of course there's the sitting of the Court of Appeal here. This is always worthwhile, though not many people ever take advantage of the opportunity to improve their civic understanding by dropping in February, I suppose, is enough of a dead weight without adding solid gobs of heavy law to the burden of the season. And this is a pity, for the sitting now going on here is producing plenty of food for the reflective mind.

Take the appeal, now being considered, of Sommers and Gray. These men were convicted last summer on various counts of bribery and conspiracy; and I only mention it now because people seem to have forgotten, and they ought to remember. However, here is the Court of Appeal listening patiently to the most involved concerning highly technical points of law

The matter of actual guilt or innocence, which one would think would be the burning question, or did the jury make a mistake, is not raised at all. Instead the question for decision is whether or not the form of the indictment upon which these men were tried was correct or not,

And here is where the processes of law are so wonderful. A lot of nattering about the wording of an indictment may seem to the wording of an indictment may seem to many to be a mere attempt to evade justice by hiding behind technicalities; a classic example of how the law baffles the honest citizen. "How can the law concern itself with trifles and tricks like this?" and he goes and tells his friends how rotten it all is, and they agree. But it is by the tedious process of arguing out the exactness of wording that the law out the exactness of wording that the law is made certain. And certainty of law, the knowledge that the effect of such and such a passage is thus and thus, is a jewel worth years of tiresome haggling.

Long after Messrs. Sommers and Gray and the rest have gone their way, another stone will have been added, through their wrongdoing, to the monument of the law. Even in February it cannot be said that they

A WRITER'S DIARY

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

A FEW DAYS AGO I accepted a challenge thrown out by a film theatre to see two sensational films (Double the Terror! Twice the Horror!) on-a single program. The shockers were 'Monster on the Campus' and 'Blood of the Vampire,' and they provided me with pleasant sport, for I am a connoisseur in this realm of art, and relish an evening among the monsters.

The first was about a young professor of anthro-pology who was careless in handling a coelocanth, and (As this early ancestor with a fondness for blondes. of man, the professor looked like a Little Theatre actor, clumsily made up to play Abraham Lincoln.) of Frankenstein which keeps it alive; Mrs. Shelley was but 21 when she wrote it (19 when she produced the first version) and the writing has the stiffness, and the cart-before-the-horse construction, which marks the beginner.

The story is of Victor Frankenstein, a student of "natural kenstein, a student of "natural philosophy" at the University of Ingolstadt, who discovers "the secret of life," makes a man eight feet tall out of slaughter-house waste, and sets him going. For those who have seen the film made in 1931, or either of its sequels, it may be interesting to know that the tale is set in the 18th centry, and not in the 19th, which is considered more romantic by modern taste.

'Creation' to Mark Church Centenary

Performances of Haydn's In subsequent years it was oratorio, "The Creation," have sung under the baton of Frank Tupman on several occasions occurred regularly at intervals occurred regularly at intervals in the history of Metropolitan United Church, since the first occasion in April of 1902. Wicket and James Oakman

Such a tradition makes it fitting that the oratorio should be chosen to be performed as part of this year's centennial celebration of Metropolitan Church. March 11 is the date which "The Creation" will be performed in the church by an augmented choir with a guest conductor and soloists from Vancouver.

These are Beverley Fyfe, conductor of the Theatre Under the Stars and Vancouver's Bach Choir; Kay Morrison, so prano; Bruce Holman, tenor, and Kenneth Smith, baritone. Eric Boothroyd, the church's regular choir leader, is training the choir and will accompany the performance at the organ console with Grace Timp at the piano.

When Metropolitan Church first presented the work in 1902, the late Gideon Hicks conducted a chorus of 150 voices with the late Jesse Longfield at the organ. Solo ists were a Miss G. H. Brad. ley of Tacoma, A. T. Goward and Herbert Taylor of Victoria.

Could be that coach Wayne Robinson would be playing it smart to let Randy ease in under the fatherly wing of Dorow until the wonder boy from the corn fields of Iowa gets the feel of the play-for-pay pastime . . . nobody can do all the things Vancouver fans are going to expect from Duncan—unless somebody turns off the publicity tap in

. It could be too late. The Duncan publicity campaign already has the long-suffering B.C. grid faithful dreaming of a mighty magician who will lead the Lions to the promised land—Toronto's spanking new CNE stadium, where the 1939 Grey Cup game will go on view . . . It's just about time for the oft-changed rhyme that started with "The Lions will roar in '54" to undergo another switch to something like, "With Randy in line, everything's fine for '59."

Chamber of Commerce directors Friday approved set-ting up a solicitations group to investigate appeals for charitable donations and ad-vertising despite the fears of one director that the task might be too large. Hugh Stephen said the idea was excellent but he wondered if it was practical. He supported the move proposed by the Retail Merchants and Public Affairs group, after Justin Harbord said the task might be difficult initially "but would soon straighten out."

W. A. Laudrum, one of the backers of the plan, said its purpose was to control the number, quality and timing of appeals to members.

They're Carving a Showpiece Park Out of Goldstream's Beauty

Work is progressing speedily on newly-created Goldstream provincial park, scheduled to be opened April 1. Gravel is being laid on roadways and parking areas to form solid surface, and trucks and bulldozers, as seen at left, are busy all day long. In centre, Fred Harmon, foreground, and Frank Dann paint campsite number posts, made from plywood mill peeler cores and given hand-hewn appearance.

Eventually there will be 147 campsites, and already 70 are ready for use. At right, Ralph Humphreys paints wood carving in dogwood motif, typical of signs and emblems used to mark provincial parks.

Parks branch intends to make area, so close to Victoria headquarters, show-piece of parks system. Plans call for building of a rustic bridge and nature museum as added attractions for park.

MONTE ROBERTS

There is nothing a columnist dearly loves more than finding a mistake in the paper.

Even a simple typographical error, such as "bridge".

instead of "bride," sends the columnist into gales of laughter, and gives him yards of material with which to point with derision and make sneering little funny

And a real, honest to goodness error which cannot be blamed on the vagaries of the linotype machine is worth six or seven inches of the columnist's type, any day in the week.

Thus you can imagine the delight with which I pounced on, not one, but TWO errors in Thursday's Times.

What added to my delight was the fact they were both contained within the short confines of a photograph

Victoria has challenged Granby, Que., to a one-sided balloon-blowing contest that only the French-Canadian city can win-if it dares

In a sequel to Granby's cancellation of a deal to purchase 64 seven-foot balloons after publicity on Victoria's unsuccessful attempts to keep them inflated, this challenge was fired Friday to J. H. LeFebvre, general organizer of Granby's centennial commit-

But it cancelled the order after a Times story, recalling Victoria's humorous "battle of balloons," was publicized in Montreal newspapers.

Another twist was added to the growing balloon legend when five prominent Vic-torians—visiting Montreal immediately wired Ald. Edgelow:

"Congratulations on sale of balloons. Respectfully request delay of delivery until we evacuate this area." It was signed by Messrs, Mayhew, Phipps, Elworthy, Walters and Arnott.

On the serious side, Ald. Edgelow emphasized the bailoons were purchased by Victoria with donations from merchants, not public funds.

If Granby insists on cancelling the order, the local committee still will make every effort to sell the balloons and the bladders and nylon rope to some other group. Proceeds will be pumped into the committee's trust fund for a civic audi-"Service above self . . ."

Rotarians pledge themselves to this motto. Half a million Rotarians in 111 countries spanning six continents make it meaningful.

"Service above self . . . Do Victorians believe it? Do they believe anow is ite? Tomorrow is Sunday? Ask the people at Goodwill Industries at 560 Yates.

After you ask them, be prepared to stay awhile. They'll Fred Blakeney would be a good man to talk to. He started the thing here. Back in February, 1956, muscular dystrophy (a wasting disease of the muscles) felled him. But it didn't alter his spirit. He felt there ought to be a place for people like him, paraplegics, poliomyelitis victims, partly paralyzed citizens.

Fred didn't agree that because a man's muscles are useless, the individual is useless. He gave birth to Goodwill Enterprises, an organization where handicapped could be employed and earn by rehabilitating goods and clothing

Eight persons constituted the entire personnel of Goodwill Enterprises when it opened. For almost two its progress.

Then in late 1957, Goodwill Enterprises faced a crisis The point of no return was reached. Goodwill needed better quarters, better equipment. Without it, the future was Victoria Rotarians stepped in. Outgoing president George Gray and president-elect Dr. R. J. Wride led the way. With nary a dissenting member, Rotary put up more than $12,000. Co-operative contractors used the money and gave Goodwill Enterprises $20,000 worth of work.

Rotarians haven't stopped since. In many ways, some significant, some small, they have helped, financially, personally and collectively, to make Goodwill Enterprises You want concrete proof? Ask Clifton McLean. Or

You want concrete proof? Ask Chinon McLean. Or-phaned as a tot, he contacted polio at four. He was left with a limp, a damaged hand and less than normal co-ordination. The disease didn't mangle his spirit. He felt he could make his own way in life, that he could perform a useful function. Part-time jobs gave him some money. Enough to keep body and soul together but practically nothing to adesulted in a complete outfit, including cane, for $14.76. Goodwill Enterprises operates on a shin profit basis. Had he bought the same clothing new at retail prices he would have paid $168.50.

The cane, he didn't need. He bought it for distinction. It gave him a psychological lift. People like him need something like that now and then. Goodwill Enterprises helped itself—its members made the things McLean bought—when it helped McLean. Without Rotary neither party would have gained. Rotarians don't apply their motto in Victoria only.

Ask the orphan boys in Northern Rhodesia. They ceded a home. Rotarians raised $58,000 for one. Ask the muscular dystrophy victim in Australia. He needed special equipment his poverty-stricken family couldn't provide. He has it now. It was sent by a Rotary club in the U.S.

Ask a certain colony of lepers in Singapore. They lacked educational facilities. Rotary provided support—"money" is the best term—for a school.

President Eisenhower has said this about Rotary: ". . . it has established a splendid record of service.

have contributed much to human society on every con-tinent. As you help the governments and peoples of the world to see your vision of 'Service above self' and as you work together toward your common goals, you are adding strength to the peaceful progress of all mankind."

And Prime Minister Diefenbaker...

"I want to say how much I recognize and realize the contributions made by Rotary to international affairs, in particular bringing together the representatives of various races and nations to a degree that is phenomenal in its numbers and tremendous in its contributions."

Kind words. Honest words, too.
Throughout the world Rotarians will mark the organization's 54th anniversary Monday.

In Victoria, Rotarians can walk with heads high.

They'll wear smiles as men can smile when they have done something for someone else. They can take pride in knowing they have fulfilled and are fulfilling the thoughts expressed by Rotary's founder, Paul Harris, at the time of the forming of the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults. ...

"We have sown the seed of a great work which will bear fruit. I believe, in a remarkable way."

Encouraging progress in the development of the parish by an increase of 20 per cent in general receipts was noted at the annual meeting of St. Peter's Church, Lake Hill.

The pastor, Rev. K. M. King, also reported that attendance

Gestures Mean Charm to a Woman

Thumbing through the dic-ionary I find that the word "gesture" comes from the Latin "gestus" and that it means "the bearing or mo-tion of the body or a part of the body."

Hmmm! Those moving

Ever think of them in ng your appearance?

The fashion magazines say that any smartly dressed woman, whether she be 18 or 60, loses her charm if she sits, stands or moves incorrectly.

These magazines give any number of hints on posture. Let's check a few.

Your walk, my lady! Do you trot along with feet flat on the ground, head down and shoulders drooping?

What a pity! According to the experts, this is bad form with a big Painless, what?

Naturally, you would have been sitting with your feet either crossed at the ankle or placed one in front of the Splutter . . . splutter! Smokes gets in your eyes? Do you know why? You're probably not sitting up straight with your head up high while you light or accept a light for your cigaret.

If you hold your head up, there will be little chance of smoke making water!

With the new shorter skirts, our legs, good or bad, are always on show. Awkward when sitting, if you're not very careful.

not very careful.

Sheath skirts and low chairs spell trouble but you can look very attractive if when lowering yourself into a chair you slide one leg in front of the other in a crossstep. This gives enough slats in the skirt so you can glide into position. Then, move legs to parallel position, calves touching and angled to one side. The strain will diminish and strain will diminish your skirt billows out.

Although sitting with limbs crossed isn't too atilmos crossed isn't too attractive there is one exception...cross legs at the ankles when you wear a bouffant gown. This spreads a full skirt and keeps it from dangling around ankles or crushing down on the ground. ground.

Remember, gals! The world is your audience and everyone is looking at you! So, how do you look?

Ever stand like this? Well, did you? Mrs. Nancy Inglis, our attractive model nstrates what you could look like She groans: "It makes me feel as if I haven't slept for weeks!"

That's it, Nancy. Shoulders back, tummy in, right foot forward, left foot back. It makes your skirt hang nicely, doesn't it? And you do look relaxed, comfortable and happy.

"Oh-h-h-h! My back! It never stops aching!" If you sit like this with your shoulders, arms and legs collapsed into huddle Nancy is demonstrating, you'll have a chronic backache, for sure.

Little Mink, the Inglis' Pekinese dog, rests comfortably on his mistress' knee when she sits like this! Her straight back and high head sets a good example for you to follow.

Ooops, Nancy! Surely you know that isn't the way to pick up a glove . . . or anything that is dropped on the floor for that matter. You look mighty uncomfortable with that hand tucked in under your waist. Don't you feel your anythand the feel very awkward?

A.h.h.h! Now, that's better! Like a collapsible chair, Nancy has lowered herself in a folding spiral to pick up that glove. Her head is high and . . better still . . her shoulders are back. It's the relaxed look, fashion magazines say. magazines say.

Poof! Nancy will get smoke in her eyes if she persists in this bending from the waist, twisting of the head gesture when she wants a light for her cigaret. It's cramped and graceless.

Now this looks better. Nancy stands erect this time. She finds her hand is steadier and certainly she looks more attractive. As for the smoke . . . it spirals up and away without making her squint and screw up those pretty features into an unpleasant grimace.

Victoria Shops Add Color To Dreary Buying Chore!

By PENNY SAVER

I do hope you're not one of those women who think that pping is an exhausting and depressing chore. If you do, in next time you must buy, take a different outlook because thought to the amount it will boing is really fun! shopping is an exhausting and depressing chore. If you do, then next time you must buy, take a different outlook because shopping is really fun!

When I step into a grocery store, do you know what I ce first? The smells! Have you ever just stopped and aniffed? There is a tangy, fresh scent around the fruit and vegetable stands. Usually there are flowers somewhere adding their fragrance. Then you may go by the coffee and teas, or a shelf of soap. Take a whiff, it'll brighten your day!

What I like when doing that "basic" shopping, is finding little gifts with the introduction of a new product or a special offer.

One toilet soap (that is especially creamy, to protect the will have to have large pockets, complexion, and has a lovely perfume) is offering four bars. A little larger bag which rein any color such as a turquoise soap to pretty up the turn tains its original shape is much quoise bathroom.

Then, to complete it's attractiveness, there's a smart and oh-so-handy rain hood added to each package. If you haven't one of these little hoods in your purse, you may regret it the one of these little hoods in your purse, you may regret it the next time a rainy squall catches you with your prettiest hat unprotected. Four bars and hood are 44 cents.

While we're on the subject, I found another real soap value in a bright little store. There are bars of toilet soap, in pastel colors at five for 39 cents.

A detergent for dish washing is also on at a special saving—two regular sized boxes for 55 cents!

I was standing (mulling over some frozen strawberries).

I was standing (mulling over some frozen strawberries), when I realized something new had been added—music! And not just background, dinner music—not here anyway. Believe it or not, it was a Beethoven symphony!

Biggest News in Reducing History! STAUFFER

America's No. 1 Home Reducing Plan

STAUFFER'S "MAGIC COUCH" in the beautiful new Princess Model embodies 20 years of figure-beautifying success ... is now yours for only $179.50.

Only $20 Down-$11 a Month*

It's the greatest bargain in the history of home reducing! Today you can get Stauffer-the original home plan that outsells and outperforms all others-at a price far less than you would expect to pay for a cheap imitation.

Because of superior mass production facilities and almost a quarter of a century of engineering know-how, Stauffer-the complete, scientific home reducing plan of effortless exercise and calorie reduction-can offer you this genuine oscillating home unit and complete home plan at a price far less than ordinary vibrating units and other inferior imitations which simply cannot give you the results you demand.

Beware of imitations! Don't take chances! Be sure before you buy! Insist on Stauffer-the only home reducing plan backed by more than 20 years of outstanding reducing success! Compare-and discover for yourself why Stauffer, the first and biggest name in the home reducing field, is today's greatest value.

Remember ... ONLY STAUFFER

brings you all of these fabulous advantages: 1. Removes excess weight and inches, improves posture without starvation diet or strenuous exercise. 12. The Stauffer principle has brought new figure beauty to more than 5,000,000 women — an unchallenged record no imitator can possibly match! 3. Stauffer's "Magic Couch" (Posture Rest®) is uncondition ally guaranteed in writing ... approved by Underwriters Laboratory. 4. Posture Rest provides genuine controlled, rhythmic oscillatory motion. Not a vibrator. 5. Posture Rest has proved two-way center-section action no sliding platforms, no opposing movements.

6. The Stauffer Home Reducing Plan has earned the Good Housekeeping seal...is followed up after the sale by a highly-trained counselor to help assure results.

7. The only home plan in the world which offers a timer, stretch bar and leg-and-arm attachment for the unit at slight additional cost.

BEWARE OF IMITATORS! INSIST ON STAUFFER! Only $179.50! Only $20 down ... $11 a month

DROP THAT

That is gaining steadily in popularity is BAPCO SATIN-GLO LATEX the rubber-base wall paint that is so easy to use. Rollers and brushes rinse clean under the water tap and spatiers wipe off easily with a damp cloth. This wall finish dries in about 20 minutes, has no paint odor, and can be washed cepeatedly after a curling period of 3 or 4 weeks. Call in and nick up a color card

Ideas Missing

These are the countries of the so-called Colombo Plan, odical raising of the standard of living. Aside from this there is a curious lack of ideas chev and carried out by Russia and Red China. Khrush-chev has threatened a comon how to meet the challenge of Marxist ideas to the minds of young Asian radicals.

I was astonished during my tour of free Asia to witness a gigantic demonstration for "Free China" and against communism by the overseas Chinese of Thailand. With an orchestra and 2,000 government guests, they overflowed the Central Park which is dominated by a statue of the fifth King of Siam. Chinese friends told me this was the biggest Chinese Na-

This is the commercial competition that Khrushchev promises. State capitalists, not having to pay for labor and with complete ownership of the produced goods, can do

MONTE ROBERTS

There is nothing a columnist dearly loves more

than finding a mistake in the paper.

Even a simple typographical error, such as "bridge" instead of "bride," sends the columnist into gales of laughter, gand gives him yards of material with which to point with derision and make sneering little funny

And a real, honest to goodness error which cannot be blamed on the vagaries of the linotype machine is worth six or seven inches of the columnist's type, any day in the week.

Thus you can imagine the delight with which I pounced on, not one, but TWO errors in Thursday's Times.

What added to my delight was the fact they were both contained within the short confines of a photograph

The photograph showed HMCS Ottawa arriving at Esquimalt Harbor.

And do you know what the caption said?

The caption said Ottawa is a Restigouche-class ship. And any fool knows Ottawa is St. Laurent Class. Not only that, but the caption said Ottawa was going to join the Fourth Canadian Escort Squadron.

And any fool knows she is going to join the Second Canadian Escort Squadron, How's that for two errors in one caption? A real I could certainly have a good time poking fun at errors, except that I'm rather fond of the man who made them.

Mr. K. Greets PM at Airport MOSCOW (UPI)—British Prime Minister

Harold Macmillan opened his summit talks with Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev today and pleaded for East-West confidence lest the great powers commit suicide "by miscalculation or by muddle." Since war could start by accident, Macmillan said, "it is the duty of statesmen to see if it is possible to establish some basis of confidence or treaty or in some other way to reduce this danger. He declared the west was glad to accept Khrushchev's challenge for economic competition. "Apart from anything else this is a race in which those who do not reach first place will not be defeated,"

Macmillan flew here from London with Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, and declared on arrival that his mission was to seek better understanding with Khrush-Chev. Greeting him at Vnukovo Airport, Khrushchev replied "We are prepared for useful talks."

They began these talks in Khrushchev's office in the Kremlin two hours later and then went to a formal Kremlin banquet where Macmillan declared his fear of an accidental war.

The Khrushchev-Macmillan meeting at the airport appeared warm and friendly although there was no massive crowd of Russians like those who recently greeted visiting dignitaries from other countries.

Ever More Terrible Weapons'

Macmillan told the assembled banquet guests, including nearly the entire Soviet leadership, that he fervently wanted an end to the cold war.

"In the state of tension in the so-called cold war which has existed now for over 10 years with only intermittent and short thaws, the two blocs have been confronting each other with ever more terrible weapons of destruction," Macmillan said.

"I wish with all my heart that this competition could cease.

"It is not that we fear acts of calculated aggression—and I hope that you do not. In modern condi-tions such aggression between the great powers at least could be suicidal folly. "At the same time it is impossible to hide from ourselves the dangers of a war by miscalculation or by muddle. That indeed would be a calamity for all. "In such circumstances, it is the duty of statesmen to see if it is possible to establish some basis of confidence or treaty or in some other way to reduce this "If we could channel all the energies which at present are devoted to the manufacture of armaments both conventional and nuclear, what an upsurge there might be in the scale of production for peaceful

The Social Credit-dominated standing committee on agri culture recommended to the legislature Friday that large scale power projects should be developed through the pub-cussed at some length in the liely-owned B.C. Power Commission.

The committee further rec-mmended that the Shrum Royal Commission be asked to inquire into the broad question of public versus private power. The first recommendation appeared to be in direct oppo-sition to government inten-tions to allow the private Wenner-Gren interests to develop Peace River hydro. The committee report was filed in the legislature just as the House was ready to ad-

"IN BEST INTERESTS"

The committee's recommen control of large scale power projects arose out of briefs which it had received.

The report recommended: "That in the best interests of all the people of the province, the development of large-scale electric projects and the associated transmission systems be undertaken on behalf of and by the people . . . through its publicly-owned utility, the B.C. Power Commission.

"It is further submitted that ower requires a great deal of study and, as there is a com mission sitting at this time on costs and other matters affect ing the Power Commission, we recommend that it be empow ered to study the particular both public and private.'
